

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

TAMMY CARPENTER and AIZA EJAZ, individually and on behalf of all others
similarly situated,

Plaintiffs,

v.

TULA LIFE, INC.,

Defendant.

Civil Action No.: 1:21-cv-01856(LGS)

FIRST AMENDED CLASS ACTION COMPLAINT

JURY TRIAL DEMANDED

Plaintiffs Tammy Carpenter and Aiza Ejaz (“Plaintiffs”) brings this action on behalf of themselves and all others similarly situated against Defendant Tula Life, Inc. (“Defendant”). Plaintiffs make the following allegations pursuant to the investigation of their counsel and based upon information and belief, except as to the allegations specifically pertaining to themselves, which are based on personal knowledge.

NATURE OF THE ACTION

1. This is a putative class action lawsuit on behalf of purchasers of Tula Skincare Cosmetics¹ (collectively, the “Tula Cosmetics”). Defendant markets and sells the Tula Cosmetics as cosmetics containing “probiotics.” However, the Tula Cosmetics do not contain probiotics because a) the microbial derived ingredients assigned the “probiotic” moniker are purchased in a dead state, and b) the preservatives, i.e. antimicrobial chemicals, employed in the Tula Cosmetics would render any probiotic cultures inert and therefore useless.

2. Probiotic containing cosmetics, like the Tula Cosmetics, are beauty products that purportedly contain live microbial strains, usually bacterial, and that purportedly target the skin microbiome and preserve the skin's microbiological balance. The probiotic cosmetic industry was valued at $252.5 million dollars in 2019 and is expected to grow at an annual growth rate of 6.5% from 2020 to 2027.

3. Consumers desire probiotic cosmetics because probiotics purportedly improve skin appearance by reducing acne, rosacea, eczema, redness, and other skin ailments.

4. However, contrary to Defendant's representation, the Tula Cosmetics cannot contain active probiotics. The Tula Cosmetics contain preservatives that are intended to prevent or decrease microbial growth and therefore render any active probiotic ingredients inert.

5. The microbial-derived raw material ingredients in the Tula Cosmetics that use the term "probiotics" are manufactured by companies that render the live organisms dead before they are sold to and used by cosmetic companies such as Tula.

6. As such, Defendant engaged in widespread false and deceptive advertising on its Tula Cosmetics by claiming the Tula Cosmetics contain probiotics (the "Probiotics Claims"). Every package of Tula Cosmetics prominently claims that the product includes "probiotics."

7. Plaintiffs and Class Members purchased Tula Cosmetics designed, marketed manufactured, distributed, and sold by Defendant as containing "probiotics." Further, Plaintiffs and Class Members relied to their detriment on Defendant's representation that the Tula Cosmetics contain "probiotics." Plaintiffs and Class Members would not have paid to purchase Defendant's Tula Cosmetics— or would not have paid as much as they did to purchase them – had they known that they did not in fact contain "probiotics." Plaintiffs and Class Members thus suffered monetary damages as a result of Defendant's deceptive and false representations.

PARTIES

8. Plaintiff Tammy Carpenter is a citizen of New York, residing in Tribes Hill, New York. On July 11, 2020, Plaintiff Carpenter purchased Tula Face Filtering Blurring Primer, Deep Exfoliating Blackhead Scrub, and Glow and Get It Eye Balm for her personal use from tula.com. Prior to her purchase of her Tula Cosmetics, Plaintiff Carpenter reviewed the product's labeling and packaging and saw that her Tula Cosmetics contained "probiotics." Plaintiff Carpenter relied on that labeling and packaging to choose her Tula Cosmetics over comparable products. Plaintiff Carpenter saw these representations prior to, and at the time of purchase, and understood them as representations and warranties that her Tula Cosmetics contained "probiotics." Plaintiff Carpenter relied on these representations and warranties in deciding to purchase her Tula Cosmetics. Accordingly, those representations and warranties were part of the basis of the bargain, in that she would not have purchased her Tula Cosmetics on the same terms had she known those representations were not true. However, Plaintiff Carpenter remains interested in purchasing Tula Cosmetics with probiotics and would consider Tula Cosmetics in the future if Defendant ensured the products actually contained probiotics. In making her purchase, Plaintiff Carpenter paid a substantial price premium due to the false and misleading Probiotic Claims. However, Plaintiff Carpenter did not receive the benefit of her bargain because her Tula Cosmetics did not, in fact, contain probiotics. Plaintiff Carpenter further understood that the purchase came with Defendant's representation and warranties that her Tula Cosmetics contained "probiotics."

9. Plaintiff Aiza Ejaz is a citizen of New Jersey, residing in Hackensack, New Jersey. On November 25, 2020, Plaintiff Ejaz purchased Tula Cult Classic Purifying Facial Cleanser for her personal use from Ulta in Edgewater, New Jersey. Prior to her purchase of her Tula Cosmetics, Plaintiff Ejaz reviewed the product's labeling and packaging and saw that her Tula Cosmetics contained "probiotics." Plaintiff Ejaz relied on that labeling and packaging to choose her Tula Cosmetics over comparable products. Plaintiff Ejaz saw these representations prior to, and at the time of purchase, and understood them as representations and warranties that her Tula Cosmetics contained “probiotics.” Plaintiff Ejaz relied on these representations and warranties in deciding to purchase her Tula Cosmetics. Accordingly, those representations and warranties were part of the basis of the bargain, in that she would not have purchased her Tula Cosmetics on the same terms had she known those representations were not true. However, Plaintiff Ejaz remains interested in purchasing Tula Cosmetics with probiotics and would consider Tula Cosmetics in the future if Defendant ensured the products actually contained probiotics. In making her purchase, Plaintiff Ejaz paid a substantial price premium due to the false and misleading Probiotic Claims. However, Plaintiff Ejaz did not receive the benefit of her bargain because her Tula Cosmetics did not, in fact, contain probiotics. Plaintiff Ejaz further understood that the purchase came with Defendant’s representation and warranties that her Tula Cosmetics contained “probiotics.”

10. Defendant Tula Life, Inc. (“Tula”) is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the state of Delaware with its principal place of business in New York, New York. Tula manufactures, sells, and/or distributes Tula-brand products, and is responsible for the advertising, marketing, trade dress, and packaging of Tula Cosmetics. Tula manufactured, marketed, and sold the Tula Cosmetics during the class period. The planning and execution of the advertising, marketing, labeling, packaging, testing, and corporate operations concerning Tula Cosmetics and the Probiotics Claims was primarily carried out at Tula’s headquarters and facilities within New York. Tula sells its probiotic products online directly to consumers across the United States. Tula also sells the Tula Cosmetics through prominent national retailers like Nordstrom, Nieman Marcus, Ulta, and Amazon. The policies, practices, acts and omissions giving rise to this action were developed in, and emanated from, Tula’s headquarters in New York, New York.

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

11. This Court has subject matter jurisdiction pursuant to 28 U.S.C § 1332(d)(2)(a) because this case is a class action where the aggregate claims of all members of the proposed class are in excess of $5,000,000.00, exclusive of interest and costs, there are over 100 members of the putative class, and Plaintiff Ejaz, as well as most members of the proposed class, are citizens of states different from Defendant.

12. This Court has personal jurisdiction over Defendant because it conducts substantial business within New York, including the manufacturing, sale, marketing, and advertising of the Tula Cosmetics. Defendant also maintains its corporate headquarters and principal place of business in this judicial district.

13. Venue is proper in this District under 28 U.S.C. § 1391 because Defendant is headquartered in this District.

FACTUAL ALLEGATIONS

A. Probiotic Formulations

14. Probiotics are live microorganisms that, when administrated in adequate amounts, confer a health benefit on the host. The term probiotics excludes metabolic by-products of microorganisms, dead microorganisms, or other microbial-based, non-viable products.

15. In 2001, the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (“FAO”) and the World Health Organization (“WHO”) convened to establish guidelines regarding probiotics. The organizations defined “probiotics” as “Live organisms which when administered in adequate amounts confer a health benefit on the host.”²

16. In 2013, the International Association for Probiotics and Prebiotics (“ISAPP”) also defined probiotics as “Live microorganisms that, when administered in adequate amounts, confer a health benefit on the host.” They also noted that this definition is “the widely accepted scientific definition around the world.”³

17. Preservatives are bioactive ingredients or substances that have the ability to prevent or decrease microbial growth in a cosmetic product. Antimicrobial preservatives protect cosmetics from contamination of microorganisms, like bacteria, yeast and mold, and can prolong the shelf-life of cosmetic products. Preservatives are a key component in making a cosmetic inhospitable to microorganisms. Inclusion of a preservative into a cosmetic that contains probiotics would render a cosmetic inhospitable to live microorganisms such as probiotics.

18. Cosmetics containing “probiotics” are often formulated with both preservatives and tyndallized, or heat treated, probiotics. Tyndallization intentionally kills the microorganisms and preservatives make the cosmetics inhospitable to them. As a result, cosmetics, like the Tula Cosmetics, cannot provide any of the promised benefits because the active ingredient, probiotics, has been rendered inert and therefore cannot provide any purported health benefits.

B. Defendant’s Misrepresentations Regarding The Tula Cosmetics

19. Tula sells, manufactures, and markets its Tula Cosmetics, which are sold as “probiotic skincare.” On the front of the Tula Cosmetics’ packaging, the products are touted as containing “probiotics.”

³ See <https://isappscience.org/for-scientists/resources/probiotics/> (Last visited February 19, 2021.)

20. However, all of the Tula Cosmetics contain preservatives that render any added probiotics inert, and therefore ineffective. A small sampling is listed below:

Product	Preservative(s)
Glow & Get It Cooling & Brightening Eye Balm	Sodium Metabisulfite, Ethylhexylglycerin, and Phenoxyethanol
Face Filter Blurring & Moisturizing Primer	Phenoxyethanol
The Cult Classic Purifying Face Cleanser	Phenoxyethanol
Protect + Plump Firming & Hydrating Face Moisturizer	Ethylhexylglycerin

21. Defendant's advertising and marketing of the Tula Cosmetics is false and misleading and omits material information. Tula prominently advertises on the front label that they the Tula Cosmetics contain "probiotics." Consumers reasonably expect that Tula Cosmetics will, in fact, contain live probiotics. Nowhere on the Tula Cosmetics' packaging does Defendant inform consumers that the Tula Cosmetics do not contain live probiotics. Defendant's misrepresentations and/or omissions violate consumers' reasonable expectations and, as alleged herein, New York's consumer protection statutes.

22. Defendant knew or should have known that the Tula Cosmetics' express Probiotic Claims were false, deceptive, and misleading, and that Plaintiffs, the Class, and Subclass Members would not be able to tell that the Tula Cosmetics did not contain probiotics absent Defendant's express disclosure.

23. Defendant employs professional chemists to create the chemical formulas for the Tula Cosmetics. Therefore, Defendant, through its employees, knew or should have known that the Tula Cosmetics did not contain probiotics and that it was deceiving consumers by labeling the Products as containing "probiotics"

24. On information and belief, Defendant, through its employees, did know that the Tula Cosmetics did not contain probiotics, but chose to include the Probiotics Claims because they did not believe their customers would know the difference.

25. Had Defendant not made the false, misleading, and deceptive representations and/or omissions alleged herein, Plaintiffs and Class Members would not have purchased the Tula Cosmetics or would not have paid as much as they did for such products. Thus, Plaintiffs and Class Members suffered an injury in fact and lost money or property as result of Defendant's wrongful conduct.

CLASS ALLEGATIONS

26. Plaintiffs hereby incorporate by reference and re-allege herein the allegations contained in all preceding paragraphs of this complaint.

27. Plaintiffs seek to represent a class defined as all people who purchased any Tula Cosmetics product that falsely advertised that the product purportedly contained probiotics during the applicable statute of limitations (the "Class"). Specifically excluded from the Class are Defendant, Defendant's officers, directors, agents, trustees, parents, children, corporations, trusts, representatives, employees, principals, servants, partners, joint ventures, or entities controlled by Defendant, and its heirs, successors, assigns, or other persons or entities related to or affiliated with Defendant and/or Defendant's officers and/or directors, the judge assigned to this action, and any member of the judge's immediate family.

28. Plaintiffs also seek to represent a subclass consisting of all persons in the states of California, Florida, Illinois, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, New Jersey, New York, and Washington that purchased any Tula Cosmetics product that falsely advertised that the product purportedly contained probiotics (the "Consumer Fraud Multi-State Subclass").

29. Plaintiff Tammy Carpenter also seeks to represent a subclass consisting of Class Members who reside in New York (the "New York Subclass").

30. Plaintiff Aiza Ejaz also seeks to represent a subclass consisting of Class Members who reside in New Jersey (the "New Jersey Subclass").

31. Subject to additional information obtained through further investigation and discovery, the foregoing definitions of the Class and Subclasses may be expanded or narrowed by amendment or amended complaint.

32. Numerosity. The Class and Subclass Members are geographically dispersed throughout the United States and are so numerous that individual joinder is impracticable. Upon information and belief, Plaintiffs reasonably estimate that there are hundreds of thousands of Members in the Class and in the Subclasses. Although the precise number of Class and Subclass Members is unknown to Plaintiffs, it is known by Defendant and may be determined through discovery.

33. Existence and predominance of common questions of law and fact. Common questions of law and fact exist as to all Members of the Class and Subclasses and predominate over any questions affecting only individual Class or Subclass Members. These common legal and factual questions include, but are not limited to, the following:

(a) Whether Defendant made false and/or misleading statements to the consuming public concerning the probiotic content of Tula Cosmetics;

- (b) Whether Defendant omitted material information to the consuming public concerning the probiotic content of Tula Cosmetics;
- (c) Whether Defendant's labeling and packaging for the Tula Cosmetics is misleading and/or deceptive;
- (d) Whether Defendant engaged in unfair, fraudulent, or unlawful business practices with respect to the advertising and sale of Tula Cosmetics;
- (e) Whether Defendant's representations concerning the Tula Cosmetics were likely to deceive a reasonable consumer;
- (f) Whether Defendant's omissions concerning Tula Cosmetics were likely to deceive a reasonable consumer;
- (g) Whether Defendant represented to consumers that Tula Cosmetics have characteristics, benefits, or qualities that they do not have;
- (h) Whether Defendant advertised the Tula Cosmetics with the intent to sell them not as advertised;
- (i) Whether Defendant falsely advertised Tula Cosmetics;
- (j) Whether Defendant made and breached express and/or implied warranties to Plaintiffs and Class and Subclass Members about Tula Cosmetics;
- (k) Whether Defendant's representations, omissions, and/or breaches caused injury to Plaintiffs and Class and Subclass Members; and
- (l) Whether Plaintiffs and Class and Subclass Members are entitled to damages.

34. Typicality. Plaintiffs' claims are typical of the claims of the other Members of the Class and Subclasses in that, among other things, all Class and Subclass Members were deceived (or reasonably likely to be deceived) in the same way by Defendant's false and misleading advertising claims about the probiotic content of Tula Cosmetics. All Class and Subclass Members were comparably injured by Defendant's wrongful conduct as set forth herein. Further, there are no defenses available to Defendant that are unique to Plaintiffs.

35. Adequacy of Representation. Plaintiffs will fairly and adequately protect the interests of the Members of the Class and Subclasses. Plaintiffs have retained counsel that is highly experienced in complex consumer class action litigation, and Plaintiffs intend to vigorously prosecute this action on behalf of the Class and Subclasses. Furthermore, Plaintiffs have no interests that are antagonistic to those of the Class or Subclasses.

36. Superiority. A class action is superior to all other available means for the fair and efficient adjudication of this controversy. The damages or other financial detriment suffered by individual Class and Subclass Members are relatively small compared to the burden and expense of individual litigation of their claims against Defendant. It would, thus, be virtually impossible for Class or Subclass Members to obtain effective redress on an individual basis for the wrongs committed against them. Even if Class or Subclass Members could afford such individualized litigation, the court system could not. Individualized litigation would create the danger of inconsistent or contradictory judgments arising from the same set of facts. It would also increase the delay and expense to all parties and the court system from the issues raised by this action. The class action device provides the benefits of adjudication of these issues in a single proceeding, economies of scale, and comprehensive supervision by a single court, and presents no unusual management difficulties under the circumstances.

37. In the alternative, the Class and Subclasses may also be certified because:

(a) the prosecution of separate actions by individual Class and Subclass

Members would create a risk of inconsistent or varying adjudications with respect to individual Class or Subclass Members that would establish incompatible standards of conduct for Defendant;

(b) the prosecution of separate actions by individual Class and Subclass

Members would create a risk of adjudications with respect to them that would, as a practical matter, be dispositive of the interests of other Class and Subclass Members not parties to the adjudications, or substantially impair or impede their ability to protect their interests; and/or

(c) Defendant has acted or refused to act on grounds generally applicable to the Class and to the Subclasses as a whole, thereby making appropriate final declaratory and/or injunctive relief with respect to the Members of the Class and to the Members of the Subclasses as a whole.

COUNT I
Violation Of New York's Gen. Bus. Law § 349
(On Behalf Of The New York Subclass)

38. Plaintiffs hereby incorporate by reference and re-allege herein the allegations contained in all preceding paragraphs of this complaint.

39. Plaintiff Tammy Carpenter brings this claim individually and on behalf of the Members of the proposed New York Subclass against Defendant.

40. Defendant committed deceptive acts and practices by employing false, misleading, and deceptive representations and/or omissions about the probiotic content of its Tula Cosmetics to mislead consumers into believing the Tula Cosmetics contain probiotics.

41. Plaintiff Carpenter has standing to pursue this claim because she has suffered an injury-in-fact and has lost money or property as a result of Defendant's deceptive acts and practices. Specifically, Plaintiff Carpenter purchased Tula Cosmetics for her own personal use. In doing so, Plaintiff Carpenter relied upon Defendant's false, misleading, and deceptive representations that Tula Cosmetics contained probiotic. Plaintiff Carpenter spent money in the transaction that she otherwise would not have spent had she known the truth about Defendant's advertising claims.

42. Defendant's deceptive acts and practices were directed at consumers.

43. Defendant's deceptive acts and practices are misleading in a material way because they violate consumers' reasonable expectations. Defendant knew consumers would purchase Tula Cosmetics and/or pay more for them under the false – but reasonable – belief that Tula Cosmetics contained probiotics, when they do not. By advertising so prominently that Tula Cosmetics contains probiotics, Defendant proves that information about probiotics is material to consumers. If such information were not material, Defendant would not feature it prominently on the front label of every Tula Cosmetics package. As a result of its deceptive acts and practices, Defendant has sold thousands, if not millions, of Tula Cosmetics to unsuspecting consumers across New York. If Defendant had advertised its Tula Cosmetics truthfully and in a non-misleading fashion, Plaintiff Carpenter and other New York Subclass Members would not have purchased them or would not have paid as much as they did for them.

44. As a direct and proximate result of Defendant's false, misleading, and deceptive representations and/or omissions, Plaintiff Carpenter and other Members of the New York Subclass were injured in that they: (1) paid money for Tula Cosmetics that were not what Defendant represented; (2) were deprived of the benefit of the bargain because the Tula Cosmetics they purchased were different than Defendant advertised; and (3) were deprived of the benefit of the bargain because the Tula Cosmetics they purchased had less value than if Defendant's representations about probiotics were truthful.

45. On behalf of herself and Members of the New York Subclass, Plaintiff Carpenter seeks to enjoin Defendant's unlawful acts and practices and recover her actual damages or fifty (50) dollars, whichever is greater, three times actual damages, and reasonable attorneys' fees.

COUNT II
Violation Of New York's Gen. Bus. Law § 350
(On Behalf Of The New York Subclass)

46. Plaintiffs hereby incorporate by reference and re-allege herein the allegations contained in all preceding paragraphs of this complaint.

47. Plaintiff Tammy Carpenter brings this claim individually and on behalf of the Members of the proposed New York Subclass against Defendant.

48. Defendant engaged in a campaign of false advertising with regard to the probiotic content of Tula Cosmetics to mislead consumers into believing the Tula Cosmetics they purchase contains "probiotics."

49. Plaintiff Carpenter has standing to pursue this claim because she has suffered an injury-in-fact and has lost money or property as a result of Defendant's deceptive acts and practices. Specifically, Plaintiff Carpenter purchased Tula Cosmetics for her own personal use. In doing so, Plaintiff Carpenter relied upon Defendant's false, misleading, and deceptive representations that Tula Cosmetics would contain probiotics when they do not. Plaintiff Carpenter spent money in the transaction that she otherwise would not have spent had she known the truth about Defendant's advertising claims.

50. Defendant's deceptive acts and practices were directed at consumers.

51. Defendant's deceptive acts and practices are misleading in a material way because, as alleged above and herein, they violate consumers' reasonable expectations. If Defendant had advertised its Tula Cosmetics truthfully and in a non-misleading fashion, Plaintiff Carpenter and other New York Subclass Members would not have purchased the Tula Cosmetics or would not have paid as much as they did for them.

52. As a direct and proximate result of Defendant's false, misleading, and deceptive representations and omissions, Plaintiff Carpenter and other Members of the New York Subclass were injured in that they: (1) paid money for Tula Cosmetics that were not what Defendant represented; (2) were deprived of the benefit of the bargain because the Tula Cosmetics they purchased were different than Defendant advertised; and (3) were deprived of the benefit of the bargain because the Tula Cosmetics they purchased had less value than if Defendant's representations about probiotics were truthful.

53. On behalf of herself and Members of the New York Subclass, Plaintiff Carpenter seeks to enjoin Defendant's unlawful acts and practices and recover her actual damages or five hundred (500) dollars per violation, whichever is greater, three times actual damages, and reasonable attorneys' fees.

COUNT III
Breach Of Express Warranty
(On Behalf Of The Class, The New York Subclass, And The New Jersey Subclass)

54. Plaintiffs hereby incorporate by reference and re-allege herein the allegations contained in all preceding paragraphs of this complaint.

55. Plaintiff Tammy Carpenter brings this claim individually and on behalf of the Members of the proposed Class and New York Subclass against Defendant.

56. Plaintiff Aiza Ejaz brings this claim individually and on behalf of the Members of the proposed Class and New Jersey Subclass against Defendant.

57. As the designer, manufacturer, marketer, distributor, and/or seller of Tula Cosmetics, Defendant issued an express warranty by representing to consumers at the point of purchase that Tula Cosmetics contained probiotics. Defendant's representations were part of the description of the goods and the bargain upon which the goods were offered for sale and purchased by Plaintiffs and Members of the Class and Subclasses.

58. In fact, the Tula Cosmetics do not conform to Defendant's representations about probiotics because Tula Cosmetics do not, in fact, contain active probiotics. By falsely representing the Tula Cosmetics in this way, Defendant breached express warranties.

59. On March 1, 2021, prior to the filing of this Complaint, Plaintiffs' counsel sent Defendant a warranty notice letter that complied in all respects with U.C.C. 2-607. The letter provided notice of breach of express and implied warranties. The letter was sent via certified mail, return receipt requested, advising Defendant that it was in violation of the U.C.C. 2-607 and state consumer protection laws and demanding that it cease and desist from such violations and make full restitution by refunding the monies received therefrom. The letter stated that it was sent on behalf of Plaintiff Carpenter and all other similarly situated purchasers.

60. As a direct and proximate result of Defendant's breach, Plaintiffs and Members of the Class and Subclasses were injured because they: (1) paid money for Tula Cosmetics that were not what Defendant represented; (2) were deprived of the benefit of the bargain because the Tula Cosmetics they purchased were different than Defendant advertised; and (3) were deprived of the benefit of the bargain because the Tula Cosmetics they purchased had less value than if Defendant's representations about probiotics were truthful. Had Defendant not breached the express warranty by making the false representations alleged herein, Plaintiffs and Class and Subclass Members would not have purchased the Tula Cosmetics or would not have paid as much as they did for them.

COUNT IV
Breach of Implied Warranty
(On Behalf Of The Class, The New York Subclass,
And The New Jersey Subclass)

61. Plaintiffs hereby incorporate by reference and re-allege herein the allegations contained in all preceding paragraphs of this complaint.

62. Plaintiff Tammy Carpenter brings this claim individually and on behalf of the Members of the proposed Class and New York Subclass against Defendant.

63. Plaintiff Aiza Ejaz brings this claim individually and on behalf of the Members of the proposed Class and New Jersey Subclass against Defendant.

64. Defendant routinely engages in the manufacture, distribution, and/or sale of Tula Cosmetics and is a merchant that deals in such goods or otherwise holds itself out as having knowledge or skill particular to the practices and goods involved.

65. Plaintiffs and Members of the Class and Subclasses were consumers who purchased Defendant's Tula Cosmetics for the ordinary purpose of such products.

66. By representing that the Tula Cosmetics contain probiotics, Defendant impliedly warranted to consumers that the Tula Cosmetics were merchantable, such that they were of the same average grade, quality, and value as similar goods sold under similar circumstances.

67. However, the Tula Cosmetics were not of the same average grade, quality, and value as similar goods sold under similar circumstances. Thus, they were not merchantable and, as such, would not pass without objection in the trade or industry under the contract description.

68. As a direct and proximate result of Defendant's breach, Plaintiffs and Members of the Class and Subclasses were injured because they paid money for Tula Cosmetics that would not pass without objection in the trade or industry under the contract description.

COUNT V
Unjust Enrichment
(On Behalf Of The Class, The New York Subclass,

(And The New Jersey Subclass)

69. Plaintiffs hereby incorporate by reference and re-allege herein the allegations contained in all preceding paragraphs of this complaint.

70. Plaintiff Tammy Carpenter brings this claim individually and on behalf of the Members of the proposed Class and New York Subclass against Defendant.

71. Plaintiff Aiza Ejaz brings this claim individually and on behalf of the Members of the proposed Class and New Jersey Subclass against Defendant.

72. Plaintiffs, Class Members, and Subclass Members conferred benefits on Defendant by purchasing Tula Cosmetics.

73. Defendant has been unjustly enriched in retaining the revenues derived from Plaintiffs, Class Members, and Subclass Members' purchases of the Tula Cosmetics. Retention of those monies under these circumstances is unjust and inequitable because Defendant misrepresented that the Tula Cosmetics would contain probiotics. These misrepresentations caused injuries to Plaintiffs, Class Members, and Subclass Members because they would not have purchased Tula Cosmetics at all, or on the same terms, if the true facts were known.

74. Because Defendant's retention of the non-gratuitous benefits conferred on it by Plaintiffs, Class Members, and Subclass Members is unjust and inequitable, Defendant must pay restitution to Plaintiffs, Class Members, and Subclass Members for its unjust enrichment, as ordered by the Court.

COUNT VI

Violation Of The New Jersey Consumer Fraud Act, N.J.S.A. § 56:8-1, et seq.
(On Behalf Of The New Jersey Subclass)

75. Plaintiffs hereby incorporate by reference and re-allege herein the allegations contained in all preceding paragraphs of this complaint.

76. Plaintiff Aiza Ejaz brings this claim individually and on behalf of the Members of the New Jersey Subclass against Defendant.

77. Defendant misrepresented that Tula Cosmetics contain probiotics when they do not contain probiotics.

78. As a direct and proximate result of Defendant's breach, Plaintiffs and Members of the Class and Subclasses were injured because they: (1) paid money for Tula Cosmetics that were not what Defendant represented; (2) were deprived of the benefit of the bargain because the Tula Cosmetics they purchased were different than Defendant advertised; and (3) were deprived of the benefit of the bargain because the Tula Cosmetics they purchased had less value than if Defendant's representations about probiotics were truthful. Had Defendant not breached the express warranty by making the false representations alleged herein, Plaintiffs and Class and Subclass Members would not have purchased the Tula Cosmetics or would not have paid as much as they did for them.

COUNT VII
Fraud
(On Behalf Of The Class, The New York Subclass,
And The New Jersey Subclass)

79. Plaintiffs hereby incorporate by reference and re-allege herein the allegations contained in all preceding paragraphs of this complaint.

80. Plaintiff Tammy Carpenter brings this claim individually and on behalf of the Members of the proposed Class and New York Subclass against Defendant.

81. Plaintiff Aiza Ejaz brings this claim individually and on behalf of the Members of the proposed Class and New Jersey Subclass against Defendant.

82. Defendant provided Plaintiffs and Class and Subclass Members with false or misleading material information and failed to disclose material facts about Tula Cosmetics containing “probiotics.” These misrepresentations and omissions were made with knowledge of their falsehood.

83. The misrepresentations and omissions made by Defendant, upon which Plaintiffs, Class Members, and Subclass Members reasonably and justifiably relied, were intended to induce and actually induced Plaintiffs, Class Members, and Subclass Members to purchase Tula Cosmetics.

84. The fraudulent actions of Defendant caused damage to Plaintiff, Class Members, and Subclass Members who are entitled to damages and other legal and equitable relief as a result.

COUNT VIII
Violation of State Consumer Fraud Acts
(On Behalf Of The Consumer Fraud Multi-State Subclass)

85. Plaintiffs hereby incorporate by reference and re-allege herein the allegations contained in all preceding paragraphs of this complaint.

86. Plaintiffs bring this claim individually and on behalf of the Members of the proposed Consumer Fraud Multi-State Subclass.

87. The Consumer Fraud Acts of the states in the Consumer Fraud Multi-State Subclass⁴ prohibit the use of unfair or deceptive business practices in the conduct of trade or commerce.

⁴ California (Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200, et seq.); Florida (Fla. Stat. § 501.201, et seq.); Illinois (815 Ill. Comp. Stat. 505/1, et seq.); Massachusetts (Mass. Gen. Laws Ch. 93A, et seq.); Michigan (Mich. Comp. Laws § 445.901, et seq.); Minnesota (Minn. Stat. § 325F.67, et seq.); Missouri (Mo. Rev. Stat. §407.010, et seq.); New Jersey (N.J. Stat. § 56:8-1, et seq.); New York (N.Y. Gen. Bus. Law §§ 349, 350, et seq.); and Washington (Wash. Rev. Code § 19.86.010, et seq.).

88. Defendant intended that Plaintiffs and each of the other Members of the Consumer Fraud Multi-State Subclass would rely upon its deceptive conduct, and a reasonable person would in fact be misled by this deceptive conduct.

89. As a result of the Defendant's use or employment of unfair or deceptive acts or business practices, Plaintiffs and each of the other Members of the Consumer Fraud Multi-State Subclass have sustained damages in an amount to be proven at trial.

90. In addition, Defendant's conduct showed malice, motive, and the reckless disregard of the truth such that an award of punitive damages is appropriate.

PRAAYER FOR RELIEF

WHEREFORE, Plaintiffs, on behalf of themselves and all others similarly situated, seek judgment against Defendant as follows:

- a. Certifying the nationwide Class, the New York Subclass, and the New Jersey Subclass under Rule 23 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and naming Plaintiffs as representatives of the Consumer Fraud Multi-State Subclass, Plaintiff Carpenter as representatives of the Class and Subclass, and Plaintiff Ejaz as representatives of the Class and New Jersey Subclass, and Plaintiffs' attorneys as Class Counsel to represent the Class and Subclass Members;
- b. Declaring that Defendant's conduct violates the statutes referenced herein;
- c. Finding in favor of Plaintiff, the nationwide Class, the Consumer Fraud Multi-State Subclass, the New York Subclass, and the New Jersey Subclass against Defendant on all counts asserted herein;
- d. Ordering Defendant to disgorge and make restitution of all monies Defendant acquired by means of the unlawful practices as set forth herein;

- e. Awarding declaratory and injunctive relief as permitted by law or equity, including:
enjoining Defendant from continuing the unlawful practices as set forth herein, and directing Defendant to identify, with Court supervision, victims of its conduct and pay them all the money they are required to pay;
- f. Awarding Plaintiffs and Class and Subclass Members their costs and expenses incurred in the action, including reasonable attorneys' fees;
- g. Ordering Defendant to pay pre-judgment interest on all amounts awarded;
- h. Providing such further relief as may be just and proper.

JURY TRIAL DEMANDED

Pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 38(b), Plaintiffs demand a trial by jury of any and all issues in this action so triable of right.
